

Information for bars, clubs and restaurants

The Soho Angels are a team of volunteers helping people stay safe after a night out.

Our Angels offer anything from water and directions, to helping people contact friends and family or sitting with them while they sober up.

The Angels patrol Soho every Friday and Saturday night 10pm - 5am, looking out for anyone who needs support. They run a Night Hub on Dean Street where people can sober up, charge their phone or get medical help from St John Ambulance.

The Angels are out on Friday and Saturday nights, 10pm to 5am*

How to contact the Angels

On Friday and Saturday nights you can contact our volunteers by:

- Calling us on 020 7641 1080
- Bringing people to the Night Hub at St Anne's Church on Dean Street.

ANGELS

When to contact an Angel?

When a vulnerable person...

- Needs a place to sit and sober up
- Is lost, or has lost their belongings
- Is upset and needs someone to talk to
- Needs basic first aid
- Is alone and needs help contacting friends or family
- Has had a bad experience, is distressed or needs someone to talk to
- Needs a place to charge their phone so they can get home safely

If someone needs emergency medical attention always call an ambulance.

How can we work together?

The Soho Angels want to work with bars and clubs to help you support vulnerable customers and keep people safe.

Can you help let people know about the Angels?

- Display posters or drink coasters in your venue
- Let customers and other businesses know that we are here to help
- Share messages about the Angels on your social media platforms
- Let all your staff know who the Angels are and how they can help

We can supply posters, social media images and other publicity material – just get in touch by emailing sohoangels@westminster.gov.uk

More information

The Soho Angels are run by Westminster City Council in partnership with the LGBT Foundation. The initiative is proudly supported by Smirnoff.

It is made possible by partners from St John Ambulance, the Metropolitan Police, Drinkaware, London Ambulance Service and Safer Westend business partnership.
