Having reflected again (subsequent to the ES assessment) very carefully on these matters, I am inclined to maintain the ES's identification of some limited harm. I have to say this is a finely balanced conclusion and there is a credible no harm case on balance, on either the Palmer or Bramshill basis.
New Text (changes in bold)
Having reflected again (subsequent to the ES assessment) very carefully on these matters, I am inclined to disagree with the ES's identification of a moderate beneficial effect on the Buxton Memorial (see 8.94 of the ES). I have to say this is a finely balanced conclusion and there is a credible no harm case on balance, on either the Palmer or Bramshill bases .
